eBooks in Children’s World

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011
Here’s the presentation that I gave today on eBooks in Children’s World at the Children’s Book Fair in Calgary.

http://prezi.com/bin/preziloader.swf
eBooks in Children’s World on Prezi

Service & Leadership

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011
http://prezi.com/bin/preziloader.swf

Service & Leadership on Prezi

Remembering Steven Paul Jobs

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011
Steve Jobs will be missed forever, in today’s digital world, and tomorrow’s whatever world comes into being – dominated by a brilliant company “Apple” that he built, succeeded and dedicated his life to. May his soul rest in peace, and god bless.

Remembering Steven Paul Jobs

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011
Steve Jobs will be missed forever, in today's digital world, and tomorrow's whatever world comes into being – dominated by a brilliant company "Apple" that he built, succeeded and dedicated his life to. May his soul rest in peace, and god bless.

© Manoj Khanna 2003 – 2012.

Classic Steve Jobs – NeXTstep Demo

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011
A classic Steve Jobs NeXTstep demo video. Amazing speed @ probably less than or around 14MHz. This was the OS that was built ten years ahead of its time. Simply, genius.

[youtube http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=j02b8Fuz73A]

---

5 things you must know about

self publishing

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011

As we delve deep into the abyss and dismay of digital phenomenon, it is becoming increasingly clear and confusing on how we can or will benefit from the factors such as self-satisfaction and self-healing, and bring that sense of self-upheavel towards the cause of self-maturity to the level where we are capable of self-publishing and share our experiences of life and its learning with the larger reader group and that is the world.

Sean writes an impeccable post on top 5 things you must know about self-publishing. And not to spoil all 5, here are first three:

1. Self publishing can be the first step to lifelong writing success.

2. You don’t have to be on your own.

3. The digital age makes niche markets viable, and self publishers will be the ones to exploit them.

Read the entire post by Sean here – http://bit.ly/nHIhXc.

Disclaimer: Sean works for me, and is a Marketing Co-ordinator @rapidBOOKS.

---

5 things you must know about self publishing

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011

As we delve deep into the abyss and dismay of digital phenomenon, it is becoming increasingly clear and confusing on how we can or will benefit from the factors such as self-satisfaction and self-healing, and bring that sense of self-upheavel towards the cause of self-maturity to the level where we are capable of self-publishing and share our experiences of life and its learning with the larger reader group and that is the world.

Sean writes an impeccable post on top 5 things you must know about self-publishing. And not to spoil all 5, here are first three:

1. Self publishing can be the first step to lifelong writing success.

2. You don't have to be on your own.

3. The digital age makes niche markets viable, and self publishers will be the ones to exploit them.

Read the entire post by Sean here – http://bit.ly/nHIhXc.

Disclaimer: Sean works for me, and is a Marketing Co-ordinator @rapidBOOKS.

© Manoj Khanna 2003 – 2012.

Macintosh as an industry standard (1983)

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011
Very interesting comment from Bill Gates to Steve Jobs "…Macintosh of all the machines that I've seen meets that standard."

[youtube http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NVtxEA7AEHg]

Macintosh as an industry standard (1983)

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011
Very interesting comment from Bill Gates to Steve Jobs "…Macintosh of all the machines that I've seen meets that standard."

[youtube http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NVtxEA7AEHg]

© Manoj Khanna 2003 – 2012.

Looking past limits: Caroline Casey (from TED)

written by Manoj Khanna | November 27, 2011
A heart warming story of Caroline Casey shared by herself. Sometimes we're blind, figuratively, when we try to be someone, something, that we're are not and we know we are not but we still try hard. Caroline shares some great examples and lessons she learned throughout her life journey. I particularly like the way she put it how she wants to change the way we see the world, people and challenges. An amazing woman, and loved the talk.

http://video.ted.com/assets/player/swf/EmbedPlayer.swf